In the last few months, lack of space has accounted for the omission of our usual summer Guide to Foreign visitors to Cambridge. Bus routes, pub opening times, and other useful information are all very well, but we feel that What's On, one way and another, covers all the visitor needs to find out about the things that are needed in Cambridge. Consider the advertisers in "What's On." A good centrally situated pub in Cambridge, where one can obtain excellent hot and cold meals

The writer can vouch personally that he enjoys good service, as fast as the landlord can supply good food and well-cared for beer, in the "Mitre," in Bridge Street, (opposite St. John's College). Since our business is nearby, we have personal experience of how Harry can do it. And take the outlying pubs. The Plough, at Fen Ditton, serves as good meals as you can get in their charming restaurant, while at the same time, one can get the traditional English spirit of good cheer in the public bar, or if one prefers, the Club bar atmosphere before and after the meal. The "Red Lion," at Trumpington, where Mr. Barbour holds the fort, is another outlying place where one can get a first-class meal in the traditional atmosphere, and at a very reasonable price. Of course, for those who wish something in town which is really out of the ordinary, Le Jardin Restaurant Francais, in Hills Road, enjoys a country wide reputation. Monsieur André, the proprietor and supervisory chef, ensures a meal that is quite out of the ordinary. Surely the proof is in the numerous mentions he has in many international good food guides. Then the Garden House Hotel, whose dinner dances on Saturdays have been established as a must for every visitor, needs no recommendation here. And discussing Dinner Dances, anyone who comes to Cambridge must visit the Bridge Hotel at Clayhithe. In this river setting, who can deny that the spirit of the Fens, brought up to date, is extant. Incidentally, what price the new gambling Casino in March? Don't say Cambridgeshire isn't up to date!

Getting about

Of course, to the visitor, getting from place to place must be a little bewildering. The aforementioned apology about bus routes applies to most, but for those in a hurry, think not that Cambridge is behind the times. In Cambridge, United Taxis holds the proud reputation of being one of the first Taxi firms to have radio directed cabs. While this is probably old hat nowadays, the firm keeps in the forefront. Next month, nine new cabs will be in front of their office in Round Church Street. Some £5,000 worth of cars They must be good to afford that sort of money.

Again, the environs of Cambridge are perhaps as important as the town itself. Take Newmarket Races. Until recent years, a preserve for the addicts or the affluent, Newmarket is now advertising its races for the common man. Indeed, what is happier than a day at Newmarket Races, if the weather is kind. You can hire a car from Kennings (another advertiser in What's On) and spend a memorable day for a few pounds. You might win a few bob and you certainly need not lose anything!

McPherson's

Incidentally, regular readers will, I hope, remember me saying that "one of our colleagues is about to drive," a few months ago. We have kept a deathly silence since. After all, we might have sent a clot to Learn (though we did not think so). We said we would let you know the result of the Course of Instruction. We are glad to report, (to the credit of our small organisation, or rather to the people in it), that McPherson's have proved trumps! She has passed first time! This is of course, as usual with What's On, hot from the press. There are so many Motoring Schools now that we take pride that our advertiser, one of the good schools, has turned up trumps, and has proved, once more, their reputation.

A chequered Career

Trades Fairs in Cambridge have certainly not had it easy in the past fifteen years. I remember being slightly involved in the first and greatest Trades Fair, organised by a committee

The Shop Acts were quoted to its detriment then. I was directly involved some five years ago in another attempt to support a Cambridge Trades Exhibition, in which the Shop Acts were invoked.

I see that another Trades Fair will take place next month. On this occasion, I am glad to see, the Shop Acts regulations have been suspended. All this jargon means that it will be worth visiting after about seven post meridian, i.e. the evening. Personally, I am glad that officialdom has bowed to the desires of the public, but what slightly bewilders me is why, what is sauce for the goose is never sauce for the gander. Officialdom has always been the subject of ridicule, but what is not always appreciated is that its dead hand often suffocates the spirit of enterprise.
